

L'Université
de Montréal et de votre carrière.

Deeply rooted in Montreal and dedicated to its international mission, Université de Montréal is one of Canada's Top 100 Employers. Like the city whose name it bears, it is effervescent and multicultural.

UdeM attracts over $500 million in research funding every year, making it one of the three university research hubs in Canada. It also ranks among the best universities worldwide and among the five best French language universities.

Through the achievements of the members of its community, UdeM participates in building today's and tomorrow's world.

Assistant or Associate Professor of Nutrition in Public Health

Department of Nutrition, Faculty of Medicine

The Department of Nutrition of the Faculty of Medicine of Université de Montréal is seeking to recruit an Assistant or Associate Professor with research expertise in the field of nutrition and public health. A key mission of the Department of Nutrition is to educate and train students as dietitians committed to practicing within the four sectors of the profession: Clinical Nutrition, Public Health Nutrition, Food Service Management, Nutrition in Agrifood and Biopharmaceuticals. It is also the Department's mission to pursue cutting-edge nutrition research and instruct students to develop strong skills in research practice and knowledge dissemination at the national and international levels. Our vision is one where advancements in nutrition are at the heart of transforming systems that are central to promoting health along with environmental sustainability and renewal. To learn more about the Department's research axes, consult our strategic planning objectives.

As a professor, you will have the opportunity to contribute to the excellence of the Department of Nutrition of the Faculty of Medicine...

...through your teaching and your research activities. You will also ensure the visibility of your discipline in addition to actively participate in the operation of a renowned institution. As such, you will need to

- > Accomplishments in research in the field of nutrition in public health, particularly on food systems and their environmental, economic and political determinants, with a One Health approach;
- > Active integration of socially responsible research practices, taking into account the potential impact on society;
- > Familiarity with research involving vulnerable populations and multicultural groups;
- > Ability to conduct research with Indigenous people in a culturally safe and participatory approach;
- > An expertise in quantitative and qualitative research, mixed designs, and/or in program evaluation;
- > Strong potential for excellence in teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels in nutrition and the ability to supervise students at the graduate level.

To succeed in this role, you'll need to:

- > Hold a PhD (or equivalent) in nutrition or in a relevant field and demonstrate significant experience and productivity at the postdoctoral level or as an independent researcher in the field(s) of interest;
- > Have demonstrated excellent research productivity through a publication record including articles in relevant journals in the field, and possibly a track record of research funding from recognized organizations;
- > Experience in teaching and research supervision at the undergraduate and graduate levels (depending on career stage);

- > Being a member of the Ordre des diététistes-nutritionnistes du Québec (or be eligible) and / or being a member of the Dietitians of Canada (or be eligible) is an asset.
- > An adequate knowledge of the French written and spoken language or a strong commitment to mastering the proficiency level required, in accordance to Université de Montréal's Language Policy. An institutional learning support program is offered to all professors wishing to learn French or improve their communication skills.

How to submit your application

We invite you to submit: a letter outlining your interests and career goals (maximum 2 pages); your vision of teaching and student supervision in nutrition, including EDI aspects (maximum 1 page); a description of your scientific achievements and research program (maximum 2 pages); your curriculum vitae and a copy of your diplomas to the e-mail addresses below. DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

Université de Montréal is strongly committed to fostering diversity and inclusion. Through its Equal Access Employment Program (EAEP), UdeM invites applications from women, Aboriginal people, visible and ethnic minorities, as well as persons with disabilities. We will –confidentially – adapt our recruitment mechanisms to the specific needs of people with disabilities who request it.

UdeM embraces a broad and inclusive definition of diversity that goes beyond applicable laws, and therefore encourages all qualified individuals to apply, regardless of their characteristics. However, in accordance with Canadian immigration requirements, priority will be given to Canadians and permanent residents.

In order to measure the impact of its equity, diversity and inclusion actions, UdeM is collecting data on applicants identifying themselves with one of the groups targeted by the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, namely women, Aboriginal people, visible minorities, ethnic minorities and people with limitations. To this end, we thank you for completing this self-identification questionnaire. The information you provide through this form is strictly confidential and will be shared only with those responsible for the UdeM EAEP. If you wish, you may also indicate that you belong to one of the targeted groups in your cover letter, which will be reviewed by the selection committee and the assembly of peers.

Université de Montréal's application process allows all members of the Professor's Assembly to review the application files submitted. If you wish to keep your application confidential until the shortlist is established, please mention it in your application.
